PINOT NOIR

This year pinot noir is back on top, accounting for 13.6 percent of the most popular wines in US restaurants. Although the percentage is the same as last year, it held its ground while cabernet lost some share to the surge in more esoteric varieties.

The Oregon trend is clear in the list of most popular bottlings, with 18 producers from the state making the cut. "The New York crowd is 'over' California pinot noir," says Daniel Beedle of Indian Accent in NYC. "They think it's really big, extracted pinot, and this is not a Marcassin crowd. They see Oregon pinot and think it's a perfect mix—classic Old World flavor with a little modern body and fruit."
